Management is all about human beings. Its task is to make people capable of joint performance, to make their strengths effective and their weaknesses irrelevant. This is what organization is all about, and it is the reason that management is the critical, determining factor.

Classic Drucker: Essential Wisdom of Peter Drucker from the pages of Harvard Business Review (2006), p.194

About the authors

Laurie Mullins is a consultant and author specialising in managerial and organisational behaviour. Before taking early retirement, Laurie was a principal lecturer at the University of Portsmouth Business School, where he led the behavioural and human resource management group.

Laurie has experience of business, local government and university administration and human resource management – which led to becoming a lecturer at the University of Portsmouth. For a number of years he was also a member of, and an instructor in, the Territorial Army. He has undertaken a range of consultancy work including with the United Nations Association International Service (UNAIS); as a visiting selector for Voluntary Service Overseas (VSO); adviser and tutor for a number of professional and educational bodies including UNISON Education; and an external examiner for university degree and postgraduate courses, and for professional organisations.

Laurie has undertaken a year's academic exchange in the Management Department, University of Wisconsin, USA; a visiting fellowship at the School of Management, Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology University, Australia; and a visiting lecturer in the Netherlands. Laurie is also author of Essentials of Organisational Behaviour and co-author of Hospitality Management and Organisational Behaviour both published by Pearson Education.

Gill Christy, MA (Cantab), MA, MCIPD is a Principal Lecturer in OB/HRM at Portsmouth University. She read History at Cambridge, then trained and worked as a teacher before moving into a career in training and personnel management, achieving membership of the CIPD in 1990. She spent five years at Southampton City Council before joining Portsmouth Business School in 1992, where she became subject leader for the OB/HRM group and recently served a term as Head of the Human Resource and Marketing Management Department.

Peter Scott is a Senior Lecturer in Portsmouth Business School at the University of Portsmouth, specialising in organisational behaviour and employee relations. He has previously taught at the University of Bath and Manchester Metropolitan University. His doctoral research was on craft skills and advanced manufacturing technology.
